SPINEL

Spinel has a long history; it is an excellent gem with 8 hardness MOHS. They are extraordinarily bright and lively when properly cut. Spinel takes a great polish, so with 8 hardness, it is among the top choices for jewelry. Our sources for Spinel is mainly Sri Lanka (formerly Ceylon), which is also known for producing the finest variety of Sapphire, Garnet, Tourmaline, and Ruby. All colors of Spinel are highly prized with blue and red being quite rare in large, clean stones. Blue Spinel rivals blue sapphire in color. Red Spinel has been confused with Ruby throughout history. Gemologists have identified Red Spinel in the Crown Jewels of England, Russia and Iran. Fine red spinels are found less frequently than rubies, but they are less costly per carat. As with ruby, the larger and higher chroma, the higher the cost per carat. Our stones are priced according to the size and the depth of color.

Treatment- Typically Spinel is not treated. It is usually safe to clean in an ultrasonic cleaner, but we advise using a steamer. Warm, soapy water and a soft brush is the best way to clean most gems.
